Simply enter the date of the last menstrual period (LMP), the date you want to conceive and the duration of your cycle. PregnancyCalc then calculates the most likely days of ovulation and the most optimal day to conceive. DESCRIPTION PregnancyCalc is a fertility calculator that helps you determine when you are most likely to conceive. Simply enter the date of the last menstrual period (LMP), the date you want to conceive and the duration of your cycle. PregnancyCalc then calculates the most likely days of ovulation and the most optimal day to conceive. There are a few assumptions that need to be made, if these are not entered correctly or do not correspond to your case, PregnancyCalc will calculate the wrong dates. If that happens, it will give you a message with the estimated dates in the format "That is definitely not your due date". Simply leave the fields blank and PregnancyCalc will do the rest. PregnancyCalc calculates the fertility windows using the preovulatory follicle theory, which was first described by Fredrick III of Salerno in 1282. The theory states that ovulation occurs when the dominant follicle, which has the largest diameter, ruptures. In other words, the ovulation date equals the last day of the last bleeding. What's New In Ovulation Calc For Windows 8?

Ovulation Calc is a handy and reliable application that calculates the best days to conceive a baby. If you are young, chances are that you have not had children yet. When it comes to reproduction, things are different for you. The reasons for this are: a) you are not yet at the ovulation stage; b) you do not have the necessary equipment for conception. If you are a woman in your twenties and you have never had children, or you have not had a baby yet, the best day to conceive a baby, is the first day of your next cycle after your last menstruation date. The days of your last menstruation date, you can calculate by going to If you are a woman of over 35 and you have had children, there are also other conditions that can affect the fertility of your body. If you have been pregnant and have had an abortion, for example, then it is necessary to have the first pregnancy in your life in order to be fertile again. What is Ovulation? Ovulation is the creation of an egg within the ovary. Ovulation is the key to conception in the cycle. If you conceive after ovulation, that is, if you conceive when the egg is released, you will have a healthy pregnancy. During menstruation, the eggs are released from the ovary and fall into the uterus. If the egg is not fertilized in the uterus, it is expelled. If the egg is fertilized, it is implanted in the uterine wall. The egg grows until it is ready to be delivered. The days of the first and last menstruation date are determined by the length of your cycle. Your cycles change because of the hormones of the body. This affects your cycle length. Why do I need Ovulation Calc? The best day to conceive a baby depends on the current length of your cycle, the date of your last menstruation and on the age you are. If you are not pregnant yet and you have never had children, the best day to conceive is the first day of your next cycle after your last menstruation date. If you are over 35 years old and have never had children, the best day to conceive is the first day of your first pregnancy after your last menstruation date. If you have had an abortion, you will have to wait at least one year. If you have not had a pregnancy yet, the best day to conceive is the first day of your first pregnancy after your last menstruation date.
