foo pqview is a lightweight and useful component for foobar2000 designed to show the contents of a playback queue within a playlist. Choose "Playlist Queue Viewer" from the main menu to select the playlist in which the playback queue contents will be displayed. Beginning with v2.0, after foobar2000 has been updated to version 1.2.1-64, the queue viewer will close out (as in have no windows open anymore) if any foobar2000 related processes are still running. This behavior was implemented in an attempt to reduce the chances of foobar2000 processes leaking handles, but also may occasionally cause processes that have no foobar2000 window open to be terminated. In the latest foobar2000 version (version 1.2.1-65), the queue viewer should continue to work even after the foobar2000 process terminates (since it operates on a per-process basis). If foobar2000 processes are still running, and you quit foo pqview from the windows task manager, you should see the pending queue viewer close out. If you quit from within foobar2000, then the queue viewer should also close out.Rowing at the 2012 Summer Olympics – Men's lightweight double sculls The men's lightweight double sculls competition at the 2012 Summer Olympics in London was held at Eton Dorney in August.
