In the meantime, they've made a Mac version (which is what I'm using) which works much better and with a much more modern browser (I'm using Chrome) and that works perfectly. They also have an Android version that works well too. I'm sure the Windows version will be upgraded sometime but I can't tell when. For now, the Mac and Android versions are the best. I use this for a few things, one of which being to take some bookmarks from Safari and copy them over to Chrome, either via the option in the shortcut or straight into the Chrome address bar (is that even possible?). I think the interface is good, but I don't get why there isn't a windows version. Pros Good user interface and options for advanced users Good desktop icons and chrome extensions for quick access Support for many browsers Cons Poor support for Windows. A lot of the options are left out, or only work for some browsers Very disappointed in the absence of a windows version. From my understanding, one of the main reasons for going to Mac was to avoid Windows malware, but by having Windows support and NO MAC support, I feel it becomes harder to avoid. It also means that, even if you're careful about your operating system, you have no way to know if something is going to run when you try it. My work suffers as a result of the absence of this software. I have to manually use my browser to manually copy my bookmarks. I am very disappointed with the lack of Mac support. You know, I always find it weird how users would put down a Mac when they use Windows or vice versa. OS X is just as capable as Windows. I've used Windows apps for years, and Mac apps for a while. For instance, I've used Powerpoint (PowerPoint for Mac for years, and PowerPoint for Windows since 1d6a3396d6
